

HERE'S TO THE FUTURE OF OUR AVIATION INDUSTRY!

The Airport Minority Advisory Council (AMAC) Foundation's Education and Scholarship Program has released its 2017 call for scholarships!

The AMAC Foundation works alongside AMAC and is dedicated to advancing minorities and women pursuing careers in the aviation industry. The foundation develops educational programs, scholarship and mentorship opportunities, and shares information to support aviation and airport industry professionals, from college students beginning their careers to seasoned professionals.

Since its establishment in 1997, the AMAC Foundation has awarded more than $300,000 in scholarships for students around the country, supporting a broad range of careers in airports, airlines, the federal government and private sector.

Please share these scholarship opportunities with students you know who are interested in pursuing a career in the aviation industry!

Students can apply for the AMAC Legacy Award, with a referral from a member of AMAC, or the Aviation and Professional Development Scholarship. There are several awards of $2,000 for each of these scholarships. Please see the attached scholarship application for more details. The deadline for applications is March 31, 2017.

If you have any questions about the scholarships, application process, or the AMAC Foundation, feel free to contact Terri Frierson, Program Manager, of the AMAC Foundation, at terrifrierson@palladiumholdingsco.com or (703) 414-2622 or visit our website at amacfoundation@amac-org.com.
